

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S SON GAVE MURDERED ARTIST MODEL CHECK

Draper M. Daugherty is Mentioned in Case of Miss Keenan.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, March 27.—Detective Inspector Coughlin, in charge of the investigation of the slaying of Dorothy Keenan, model, today sought further light on a story published by a morning newspaper to the effect that Draper M. Daugherty, only son of Attorney General Daugherty, was a close acquaintance of the slain girl, and might be able to put him on the trail of blackmailers thought to have used her as a pawn.

It was pointed out that Daugherty, if he is, as reported, at Atlantic City, could not be compelled to come here to tell his story, but the inspector declared he would be "glad to listen" to Daugherty's story.

Gave Her Check
Daugherty, who served for two years with the British army before America entered the war, and then became a major in the American expeditionary forces, was quoted by the newspaper as saying that he knew Miss Keenan well, had visited her apartments several times and on one occasion had given her a check to pay a bill she told him was pressing.

He began to suspect last Thursday, after receiving a telephone call at a New York club, that he, like the mysterious "Mr. Marshall," identified Saturday as John Kearsley Mitchell, wealthy and socially prominent Philadelphia, was marked for a plucking by blackmailers, he was quoted as saying.

This call, he said, came from a man who had been close to Miss Keenan. The speaker, he said, asked him how about the job he had promised to get for him in the United States Department of Justice, which Attorney General Daugherty his father, controlled.

Mentioned Miss Keenan
Admitting he earlier promised this man to see what could be done for him, Daugherty was quoted as saying he told the caller he had spoken to Mr. ——— at Washington in his behalf. The caller, he said, told him nothing had developed and added that Mr. Daugherty had to get the job for him inquiring menacingly if he wanted to see his acquaintance with Miss Keenan to come out.

Daugherty was quoted as inviting the caller to come up and take a thrashing. The man called again on Saturday, he was quoted as saying, asking again about the job in a more conciliatory tone, but getting the same response.

Daugherty declared he had no fear that blackmailers could fasten anything discreditable on him, as his relations with the slain model had been most casual. He added that his only regret, he said, was that his father's name should have been drawn into the Keenan case, particularly in view of the fact that both his father and mother are ill. Daugherty was said to have been acquainted with both of Miss Keenan's brothers, John and Frank and to have employed one of them for a time in his automobile insurance business here.

He laughed at reports that his appeal to Miss Keenan had been so strong that he had supplanted both Mr. Mitchell and Alfred Guimares, her young admirer, in her affections.

MITCHELL MEETS WIFE

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 27.—J. Kearsley Mitchell, the Philadelphia millionaire who was the mysterious "Mr. Marshall" of the Keenan murder case in New York, met his wife here today for their first interview since his connection with the case became public knowledge.

REFUSE TO TALK

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Savannah, Ga., March 27.—E. T. Stotesbury, father-in-law of J. Kearsley Mitchell, identified in the Dorothy Keenan slaying case in New York, refused to read newspaper clippings in connection with the case when he passed through here on his return trip to the north, escorting his daughter, Mrs. Mitchell.

Mrs. Mitchell also declined to discuss the case or read the clippings.

"Stolen" Car Was Found in Garage

J. J. Broszowski, proprietor of the Dixon market, last evening notified the police that his new Ford roadster had been stolen. Chief Van Bibber notified many northern Illinois cities and had a notice and description of the car broadcasted from the W. O. C. radio station at Davenport. Late in the evening it was found that the car had been left in a garage by George Richards who is employed at the market.

EASTER PROGRAMS

Special programs of Easter music to be rendered in the churches of Dixon, in celebration of the Resurrection of Christ, will be published in The Telegraph Friday evening. All copy, legibly written—typewritten if possible—MUST be in this office Thursday evening to be published.

LAKE COUNTY GRAND JURY SAID TO HAVE FOUND INDICTMENTS

Evidence of Alleged Fixing of Jury Said to Have Been Given.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Waukegan, Ill., March 27.—Grand jury investigation into charges of jury tampering during Governor Len Small's trial here last summer for using state funds advanced today as reports were prevalent that Eddie Courtney and Eddie Kaufman, both of Chicago, had been named in true bills. The two were alleged to have toured Lake County braiding veils, according to a reported confession made by William Riley, a former saloon keeper at Antioch, Ill.

Although the grand jurors were believed to be in possession of the most important testimony to be offered by A. V. Smith, state's attorney, Leslie Small, Governor Small's son, Colonel A. E. Ingles, his son-in-law and Vernon W. Schroeder, counsel for the Governor during his trial, were here today awaiting a call before the investigating.

Voted Two True Bills
The true bills, reports said, were voted after the first six witnesses offered by State's Attorney Smith had been heard. Included among them was Riley, regarded as the state's chief witness. He was closeted with the grand jury for some time yesterday.

Although official confirmation was lacking, the true bills were reported to have been voted on testimony given by Joseph Hahn of Channel Lake, prospective juror, who, according to Riley's alleged confession, was approached by Kaufman and Courtney with a proposition to vote favorably to the defendant and was selected as a juror. Hahn was excused from service on a plea of illness in his family.

Guarded in Hotel
At the conclusion of his testimony Riley was hurried from the grand jury room to a waiting automobile and taken to a hotel where he was said to have been placed under guard with Hahn and William Musch, with whom Hahn lived at the time of the trial. No official statement was made concerning Riley's testimony either, but previously he was reported to have confessed that Kaufman and Courtney gave him $1000 during the trial and that at Governor Small's acquittal he paid $350 to J. Birnie Field a juror and now deputy state game warden.

Witnesses reported to have been called for today's session were said to include city hall officials, politicians and labor leaders.

Two of the latter, Fred ("Frenchy") Mader, business agent of the fixture hangers' union, and Cornelius "Con" Shea, labor agent, were in court yesterday, but were not called before the jurors.

As the grand jurors prepared to resume their session today it became known that the register of the St. Nicholas Hotel at Springfield, Ill., had been brought here, showing under date of Feb. 6, 1923, that the names of "Con" Shea, Eddie Courtney and Eddie Kaufman had been entered.

Expect Bench Warrants
Bench warrants were expected today for those who failed to obey subpoenas to appear before the grand jury. State's Attorney Smith said that the jurors would not be dismissed until "Umbrella Mike" Boyle, business agent for the Electrical Workers' Union, who sent word he was ill, and Ben Newmark, former chief investigator for State's Attorney Crowe of Cook county and Harry Payman appeared for questioning.

Among yesterday's witnesses were West Gray, deputy sheriff during the trial; William Musch, Jr., 15; William Musch, Sr., L. O. Brockway, Circuit Court Clerk; Hahn; Riley; Charles W. Owen, a Chicago newspaper man who devoted weeks to a private investigation of the alleged bribery plot; Captain Charles Riedel, former manager of the Salvation Army Hotel, where the Governor and his legal staff had their headquarters; and Harry Ahlstrom, deputy sheriff.

Boyle, at his home last night, told questioners that he knew nothing of the charges.

"I have been charged with everything in the calendar," he said, "and its nothing new for someone now to say that I freed the Governor."

FARMERS' MARKETING BILL WON VICTORY IN UPPER HOUSE THIS P.M.

Amendment Which Would Have Killed It Was Tabled in Senate.

Springfield, Ill., March 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Supporters of the cooperative marketing bill won a preliminary victory in the senate this afternoon, when an amendment offered by Senator Swift of Libertyville which would allow members of cooperative societies to withdraw after one year, was tabled by a vote of 20 to 6. This amendment, it was said by supporters of cooperative marketing, would have made the marketing bill ineffective.

Springfield, Ill., March 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Members of the fifty-third general assembly returned to their respective chambers today and tackled several problems of state. Attention in the senate was turned on the co-operative marketing bill, which a few senators sought to amend before passing it on to third reading. The senate committee on transportation survey was to continue this afternoon its inquiry into proposed abandonment of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroad.

In order to thresh out arguments on the marketing bill, the senate dispensed with its usual Tuesday custom of a perfunctory morning session, followed by a business meeting at 5 o'clock, and met for work at 10.

In the house the most important business on hand was the O'Neill women's eight-hour bill and the Roberts measure directed against the Klux Klan, but it remained to the sponsors of these bills to decide if they should be called up today or left until later.

Usual Flood of Bills.
The usual Tuesday flood of bills prepared over the week-end kept the clerks of both houses busy for some time after the assembly reconvened.

M. F. Hendery, democrat, of Williamson was here today to push his elections contest, postponed from last Tuesday, against Representatives John Walker, Joliet; Lottie H. O'Neill, Downers Grove, and W. R. McCabe, Lockport, all republicans from the 41st district, and Ernest Bourrie, unsuccessful farmer labor candidate for a house seat.

Marriage licenses in the state would be granted only after ten days had elapsed from time of application if a bill introduced today by Representative Elmer Schnackenberg, Chicago, became law. The measure was prepared by Judge Hurley of Chicago as a means of preventing "puppy love" marriages, since the names and addresses of parents concerned would have to be filed with the application for license.

Another bill of Judge Hurley's, providing for an interlocutory decree in divorce cases, was introduced by Mr. Schnackenberg last week.

Urges Farmers' Bills.
Copies of a resolution, adopted yesterday in Chicago and signed by 87 county farm bureaus of Illinois and the Illinois Agricultural Association, urging passage of senate bills 150, and 156, were laid on the desks of all legislators this morning, and also presented to Governor Small.

Senate bill 150, provides for admission of co-operative marketing associations to all public markets and grain exchanges. The other measure is the new co-operative marketing act, containing provisions for organization and incorporation of co-operative marketing associations.

The farmers' resolutions declared that "experience has taught and reliable authorities agree that the marketing of agricultural products by commodity through co-operative associations is sound in principle. Senate bills 150 and 156 offer the agencies for creation and operation of co-operative associations."

The meeting of the farm bureau presidents in Chicago yesterday was for the consideration not only of legislative bills of marketing, finance, transportation and other projects of Illinois agriculture.

To Fix Lawyers' Wage.
Representative Breen, democrat, Paris, thinks attorneys are entitled to no more compensation than an automobile mechanic and so introduced this morning a bill to provide for an eight-hour day for lawyers at 80 cents an hour, with time and a half for overtime. If the measure becomes a law, clients must pay their counsel by the hour, or be penalized.

Mr. Breen, in mentioning his bill several days ago, told the Associated Press that his purpose would be merely to "roast the lawyers," as he did not expect it to have a successful career, there being a large number of barristers in the assembly.

Speaker Shanahan received the bill and referred it to the committee on efficiency and economy, instead of to the judiciary committee, which is composed mostly of lawyers.

The speaker bases the bill of Representative Thon of Chicago which provides for civil service system for the south park district of Chicago.

HAD OPERATION.
Elwin May, who has been employed at the Netz garage, submitted to a serious operation at the Dixon hospital Monday morning. He is recovering as well as can be expected.

Supervisor William Andreas of Palmyra was a Dixon business visitor this morning.

SEVERAL MARKED FOR DEATH IN R. I. WAR ON VICE

Evidence Before Judge
Edwards Indicated Death Ring.

Rock Island, March 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Further testimony was offered to a jury and Judge Harry Edwards of Dixon, today that strengthens the belief that several persons were marked for death by the Looney underworld gang to prevent exposure of the operations and protect various lawless activities in the city the past two years. Bill Gabel, a saloon keeper who had given evidence of extortion by the vice crowd to federal agents, was the first one killed by the murder squad.

R. C. Gosse, a federal agent, to whom Gabel gave his story and cancelled checks showing large payments for protection against arrest for prosecution, is believed to have been one of the marked men. Testimony has been presented to show that Gabel and Gosse were pursued by gun men in automobiles the night of July 31, when Gabel was riddled with bullets while alighting from a car in front of his saloon.

Evidence in the Gabel murder has been developed in the questioning of witnesses for the state in the trial of Mayor H. M. Schriver, former Police Chief Thomas Cox and Lawrence Pedigo, underworld chieftain who are indicted for conspiring in the sale and protection of gambling, liquor selling and prostitution privileges. The state expects to rest its case today in the trial of Schriver, Cox and Pedigo.

Assistant Jailer at Joliet 'Dope Peddler'?

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Ill., March 27.—A warrant for the arrest of Evan Isaacs, assistant jailer of the Will county jail at Joliet, was issued by United States Commissioner James R. Glavin today on application of William F. Waugh, assistant district attorney, as the result of a story told by Walter Henderson, a federal prisoner, that he had bought drugs while held in jail at Joliet.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, March 27.—Charges that he had bought drugs while a prisoner in the Will county jail were made to Assistant District Attorney William F. Waugh today by Walter Henderson, who has brought here from Joliet to tell his story. The prisoner declared he had paid a total of $200 for the drugs. Henderson is awaiting sentence on his plea of guilty to possessing narcotics. He was arrested sometime ago when he was found to have three straws, such as are obtainable in soft drink parlors, filled with cocaine, according to federal officers, when he accompanied Mrs. Nellie Groesinger to the county jail where her husband, Robert Groesinger, was confined. He pleaded guilty and was sent to the Will county jail pending a hearing for Mrs. Groesinger who was reported ill.

While confined there, Henderson charged, Mr. Waugh said, that a jailer sold him narcotics. He declared Frank Brown, a cell mate, would corroborate his story, and federal officials prepared to make an investigation of his story.

McAdoo and Wilson Failed to Agree

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Denver, Colo., March 27.—William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury in the Wilson administration, today telegraphed to Governor Sweet of Colorado, urging the governor to appoint Morrison Shafroth of Denver, son of former United States Senator Shafroth, to the vacancy in the United States senate caused by the death of Samuel D. Nicholson.

Yesterday former president Wilson telegraphed to Governor Sweet asking the governor to appoint Huston Thomson, now a member of the Federal Trade Commission, Thomson was one of McAdoo's ardent supporters for president at the last democratic national convention at San Francisco.

Can't Find Officer
to Serve Court Order

St. Louis, Mo., March 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Colonel T. Q. Ashburn, director of inland and coastwise waterways of the war department, who Sunday seized four tow boats and eleven of the nineteen barges of the Goltra Barge Line, before a temporary restraining order was issued forbidding the seizure has evaded service, according to Deputy U. S. Marshal Kennedy who returned today from Steeleville, Missouri, where he attempted to serve Colonel Ashburn with the court order.

Recess in Marion Trial is Continued

Marion, Ill., March 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Another recess in the Herrin riots trial was ordered today by Judge D. T. Hartwell, because of illness in the family of George E. Mohler, one of the jurors. The judge said he had received reports that the Mohler child, who was stricken Sunday with scarlet fever, was better and that Mohler probably would return and the trial be resumed tomorrow. The family refused to permit a trained nurse sent out by the court to attend to the infant.

FRANCE'S FAVORITE DAUGHTER

SARAH
BERNHARDT

ALL FRANCE MOURNS FOR BERNHARDT HER BELOVED DAUGHTER

Impressive and Elaborate Funeral Planned By Government.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Paris, March 27.—The funeral of Sarah Bernhardt has been set for Thursday afternoon and interment will be in the family tomb in the cemetery Pere La Chaise, where many great French men and women sleep.

In compliance with her wishes the funeral will be simple, as she expressed a desire that there be a great many flowers but no funeral oration.

Paris, March 27.—By the Associated Press—France mourns today for her well-beloved daughter, Sarah Bernhardt, is dead. It seems not too much to say that since the death of Victor Hugo has France been stirred so deeply. Bernhardt probably shares with Hugo and Pasteur the distinction of being the most illustrious person in the last hundred years of French history.

Bernhardt lieson her bed covered with flowers she loved. Tall candles burn at either side and at the foot of her couch, and in accordance with French custom, a crucifix and a bowl of holy water stand on a little table nearby.

The family this morning was still too overcome with grief to discuss the funeral arrangements. Bernhardt occasionally expressed the desire to be buried within the grounds of her house at Belle Isle, a romantic spot atop stormy cliffs that overlook the Atlantic. However, it has not yet been decided whether she will be laid to rest there or in the family tomb in Pere La Chaise cemetery, in Paris.

Military Funeral Possible
In any event there will be an impressive ceremony in Paris on either Thursday or Friday and there is a strong sentiment in favor of holding this at the expense of the nation. As an officer of the Legion of Honor, Mme. Bernhardt is entitled to burial with military honors. But the public feels that she is interred with the pomp befitting her incalculable services to French art.

The newspapers print columns about her. Many of the articles are signed with well known names. It was later arranged that the body should lie in state at the home beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The funeral probably will be held at the church of St. Francois des Salles, but inasmuch as this is "the week of the dead," preceding Easter there can be no high mass.

Mass of Flowers
The chamber in which Bernhardt's body lies is already filled with the flowers brought by hundreds of her admirers. The first bunch of lilies was placed on the bier in the early morning hours by her granddaughter.

Abbe Louit, the great actress' close friend, remarked that in death she had "recovered the beauty of her youth."

"Her expression," he added, "is one of peace."

STOCK JUDGING CONTEST TO BE HELD IN SPRING

High School Boys of Section to Be Given Trial Soon.

The Vocational Agricultural teachers and their principals of Northwest Illinois met at the Sterling Township high school Saturday.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Weiss of Dixon. A program of work for the meeting was arranged, and after a short discussion the members present adjourned for dinner.

The afternoon session was given up to the discussion of several important subjects relating to the teaching of Vocational Agriculture under the Smith-Hughes plan.

The main objective of these discussions was that of making the Agricultural instruction effective in the local community in teaching better methods of farming to the boys from the farms.

Prof. E. T. Austin of Sterling expressed the idea that Agricultural teaching to be effective must be such as to solve the problems of any Agricultural nature that may arise in the local community. Mr. Colvin State Supervisor of Agricultural Education, expressed his hearty approval of this idea and showed how the projects selected by the students could form the basis of class room instruction. Also that these projects could be of a practical nature the solving of which would be of lasting benefit to the individual.

Stock Judging Contest.
Among the various items of business transacted it was decided to hold a sectional stock judging contest in the community between Sterling and Dixon to give the boys from the high school in this section of the state training for the state contest at Urbana in June.

S. J. Culver of Sterling, Ralph Scott of Rock Falls, and J. N. Weiss of Dixon were made a committee to arrange the details for this contest which will be held some time during May.

Those attending the meeting were State Supervisor Carl Colvin of Springfield, J. N. Weiss of Dixon, Chas. F. Ritchie of Mt. Carroll, Ralph Scott of Rock Falls, Mr. Gibson of Ambloy, Prof. E. T. Austin of Sterling, and S. J. Culver of Sterling.

CAT-astrophe Near
The miscreant who insists on placing stray cats in the entrance to the Chamber of Commerce must cease this practice or he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. While the Chamber is charitably inclined, and with true public spirit, tries to get position and homes for those needing such, it rather draws the line at too many stray cats. This does not bode (Bard) well for certain Dixon citizens.

may have been expressed in her will, must be learned.

The suggestion of Madame Bernhardt's friends that she be given a state funeral was not taken up by the government at today's cabinet meeting, as it was explained there was no precedent for such ceremonial funerals for any except noted public personages. Official action today took the form of the dispatch by Minister of Fine Arts Herard of an official representative to the Bernhardt home to offer condolences.

Madam Sarah Bernhardt, who died yesterday, at 70 years of age seemed still a girl, was known to every land as "the world's greatest actress."

What dissent there might have been to this estimate, and however far her detractors ventured in their attempts to minimize her right to that distinction, the numerous admirers of the "Divine Sarah" remained convinced that never before had the stage produced an actress capable of soaring to such heights in the realm of emotional drama.

The work of Mme. Bernhardt was not where a theme afforded the greatest opportunity for a display of her powerful emotions. At the height of her career this form of acting, based principally on love, hate and jealousy, held the predominant place now dedicated to character delineations, and Bernhardt never was surpassed, her critics say, in this emotional school. Hundreds of parts she either rewrote or created to suit herself, seldom being content to act them as interpreted by others.

Three Generations Knew Her.
Three generations have praised and even worshipped the art of Bernhardt, and hundreds upon thousands of people around the world have thronged to see and marvel at her acting without understanding the French language, which she invariably employed upon the stage. Once, in Rio de Janeiro, she was called before the curtain more than 200 times by a wildly enthusiastic audience, and many times, in other parts of the world, she was obliged to answer scores of curtain calls at a single performance.

The long life-story of Bernhardt was dramatic legend. Closely woven with dramatic incident, off as well as on the stage, it was set down by herself in a lengthy volume published many years ago, and as one of her critics has said, "through the pages of the book peers the face of a woman, a little tired, weary of her own reputation, and blessed with more than her share of the vanities of the sex." As she and others have told the story, it is summed up here:

The date of her birth, the record of which was destroyed in the flames of the Commune in Paris, was commonly accepted as October 22nd, 1845. Her mother was Dutch and Jewish, and her natural father a French official.

Started in Convent.
As a child Bernhardt spent much of her time with relatives in Paris, and at the age of 12 was sent to the Grand Champ Convent, Versailles, where she made her debut in a little miracle play given by the children. Even at this early age, the pale and sickly child is

DR. KOST HELD TO GRAND JURY BOND IS $3000

Appeared Voluntarily
to Have Warrant Served on Him.

Dr. C. C. Kost voluntarily appeared at the office of State's Attorney Mark C. Keller late yesterday afternoon to submit to the serving of a warrant issued by Coroner S. J. Whetstone, charging him with being the unlawful slayer of Miss Roberta Sample, and the Dixon physician was immediately released on bonds of $3,000. The signature of Dr. Kost and his wife were accepted as ample security for his bond. The case now goes to the April grand jury for investigation by that body, which will determine whether there shall be an indictment and further prosecution of the case.

The Coroner's warrant was issued after the coroner's jury brought in a verdict finding that the little sixteen year old high school senior who was wronged, it was charged, by Edwin Behnman, some months ago, but whose disgrace was kept under the charitable mantle of secrecy until yesterday, "came to her death from hemorrhage following an abortion performed upon her by Dr. C. C. Kost at Dixon in Lee county, in the state of Illinois on Monday, March 19, 1923."

Relatives Defend Doctor.
The mother, old, crippled, widowed and now crushed with the loss of her daughter and the stain on the memory of the "baby" of her little family of three girls, defends Dr. Kost, a doctor, a trained nurse in Rockford, who came home when she learned her sister was sick. Both the mother and sister were present at the operation and testified that the operation was the only chance of saving Roberta's life. They also say that the issuance of death certificate naming pneumonia as the cause of death was justified because it was hoped thereby to prevent public knowledge of the shame that had marred the family name and taken their little girl from them.

Told of Autopsy.
Yesterday afternoon Dr. C. E. Bokhoff and Dr. G. P. Powell testified that they had performed an autopsy on the body of the girl after it had been exhumed at the coroner's order and they found death due to hemorrhage following the operation. The found all other organs normal and saw no evidence of pneumonia, the stated. They detailed severe fluctuations resulting from the operation.

Dr. W. R. Parker, who was called into the case to give an anesthetic at a time when, he declares, the girl could not have given the anesthetic without having been present, told the coroner's jury that he did what was required, him, administering the ether and said that he was without knowledge of just what Dr. Kost did in his operation except that he knew its general nature. He said that he found the patient in perfect health except for the pains attending the abortion when he arrived at the home and that he saw no evidence of pneumonia as he would not have given the anesthetic had such indications been present. He said that the abortion had been started before he came into the case.

Attorney John P. Devine has been retained to represent Dr. Kost.

Bus Line to Bring Chicagoans to Dixon for Week End Visit

Word was received through the Chamber of Commerce that a bus line operating between Chicago and Dixon each week end for pleasure and business is being proposed. Cooperation is asked for local business men and hotels, operators of lunch places, Rock river and any other part who would be interested in handling from 100 to 200 people on week end pleasure trips. Those interested should get in touch with the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, phone No. 26.

Turn Over Cashier's Insurance to Trust Co.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Kirkville, Mo., March 27.—It was learned today that a shortage of approximately $400,000 exists in the accounts of the Kirkville Trust Company. The cashier of the bank, Lonnie F. Gibbs, committed suicide in the vault of the bank March 25. Gibbs carried $75,000 life insurance and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Gibbs, yesterday assigned $50,000 of the amount to Dr. M. Still, president of the Citic National Bank, to protect depositors. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs were beneficiaries of the policies.

Feature Picture to Benefit W. R. Corps

The regular meeting of the Women's Relief Corps No. 218, Auxiliary to G. A. R. was held at G. A. R. hall Monday afternoon, with a very large attendance of members. There were also three comrades present. The regular routine of business was transacted, with balloting on candidates, reading of applications for membership and the initiation of three candidates. Also the installation of three officers.

April 6th being Grand Army Day, the Corps decided to hold a scramble dinner at one o'clock, after which a program will be given. It is hoped a good attendance of both comrades and members will be present. In response to a request from the president, Comrade Johnson gave a short talk.

The chairman of the executive committee announced that a benefit picture for the Corps would be given at the Dixon theatre, April 11 and 12. This picture, "The Pride of Palomar," taken from the popular story of the same name by Peter B. Kyne, and featuring Marjorie Day and Forest Stanley is considered one of the best pictures of the day, and will no doubt be a treat to all picture lovers. All corps members will have tickets for sale, and it is hoped the public will respond to the request in the sale of these tickets, as the proceeds derived from this benefit picture will be used for patriotic work and the aid of the Grand Army of the Republic.

After the meeting delicious refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Farmers of Northern Illinois to Meet in Dixon Thurs., Apr. 19

The Executive Committee of the State Farmers Institute were so pleased with conditions and facilities in Dixon that they have decided to hold the conference for the representatives for the northern part of the state at Dixon on April 19th instead of at Freeport. Twenty-five to thirty representatives from the northern counties will be present at this meeting and will make headquarters at the Dixon Inn. Further arrangements will be made then for the large convention to be held at Dixon on February 19th, 20th and 21st, 1924.

Morris Rosbrook spent the day in Ambloy on business.

HOUSE OF DAVID DEFENDED TODAY BY ITS MEMBERS

Charges of Immorality in Cult Denied on Witness Stand.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 27.—

Further testimony to refute the charges of fraud and immorality brought against the Israelite House of David by John Hansell, a former member, who seeks a financial settlement in the sum of $80,000, was offered in federal court today. Up to today the defense had called a dozen witnesses, each upholding their "faith" as followers of Benjamin

Purnell, and some attempting to discredit the charges by terming the case

an attempt at blackmail by disgruntled ex-members. One witness declared the suit was the outgrowth of a "hooded band meeting at Detroit,"

at which he declared a plot was laid to gain possession of the cult's property and set up a new colony, of which Hansell was to be the head, at Nashville, Tennessee.

Possibility that Walter H. Nelson, plaintiff attorney, might attempt to unravel a code, by which he claimed,

defense witnesses were being coached,

added interest to today's proceedings.

The attorney and court officials were on the alert for any such practice.

Judge Sater having warned that it would result in contempt proceedings.

Charges Use of Code.

The charge that witnesses were being coached was made by Mr. Nelson yesterday when Mary Purnell, wife of the cult leader, hurried from the room and is said to have spoken to a witness awaiting call. A code of signals also was being used in the court room, it was declared.

The court took a hand at once when

"Uncle Tom" Atkins declined to answer a question as to whether he would follow Purnell's instructions if the leader, through any means, told him how to conduct himself on the stand. Atkins decided he would follow Purnell's orders, "if they were right."

First evidence to the effect all the rises the cult were not strictly obeyed was offered yesterday when two women testified they had violated

the cult's law relating to the relations of husband and wife. One of the women told of a "regular courtship" before her marriage at the colony.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 27.—

said to have displayed the fits of temper which were characteristic of her stage career.

After a year or two at the convent,

she conceived a passionate desire to become a nun. To this her mother recorded unqualified opposition, and suggested a theatrical career instead.

"She's too thin to be an actress," said her god-father. "Let her be a nun."

"I won't be an actress," little Sarah categorically exclaimed. "Rachel is an actress. She came to the convent and walked around the garden, then she had to sit down because she couldn't get her breath. They fetched her something to bring her around, but she was so pale, oh, so pale. I was very sorry for her, and the nuns told me that what she was doing was killing her, for she was an actress, and so I won't be an actress. I won't."

But fate had determined otherwise, and at the age of 14, Bernhardt was sent to a conservatory. At the end of the first year she won second prize for tragedy. A subscription among the players at the Comedie Francaise enabled her to spend another year at the conservatory, and upon the completion of this she carried off second prize for comedy. Her first public appearance was at the Comedie Francaise in August, 1862. She took a minor part without any marked success.

Five years later she emerged from laborious obscurity with her first definitive success as Cordelia in a French translation of "King Lear" at the Odéon, then as Queen in Victor Hugo's

"Ruy Blas," and above all as Zanzeff

in Francois Coppée's "Le Passant," which she played in 1869.

Was War Nurse.

Then came the Franco-Prussian

war. Bernhardt increased her popularity by becoming a war nurse. In 1871 she was made a life member of the Comedie Francaise. She clashed repeatedly with M. Perrin, the manager, over the rules she should take,

and once in a fit of pique fled from the theatre and decided to give up the stage. She plunged into sculpture.

Her first piece, "After the Storm," finished some years later—won a place in the Salon. She returned to M. Perrin only to break with him again, incurring a forfeit of 4,000 pounds,

which she paid.

She invaded England, receiving a tremendous ovation, then toured Denmark and Russia. Next she came to America, where her success was instantaneous. She toured the United States and Canada eight times in some 35 years, and appeared several times in the larger cities of South America.

Appeared in Tents Here.

Breaking with the theatrical syn-dicates, which denied her the use of their theatres when she refused to come to their terms, she was compelled to appear on one of her American tours in tents, convention halls and armories. She avowed never to appear in a theatre again, but on subsequent visits she came to terms with the syndicates.

PURPOSES OF ZONING

In one of its publicity articles the National Conference of City Planning gives the following purposes of city planning and zoning:

To prevent undue congestion of population.

To insure better sanitary conditions, providing minimum requirements for light and air.

To make possible a sensible and more practical street paving program for the future.

To render possible great economies in paving city streets, through a decrease in the width of roadways where size and number of buildings are limited.

To insure the permanency of character of districts when once established.

To prevent the scattering and intrusion of any inappropriate and destructive uses of buildings which deteriorate and decrease property values.

To stabilize and protect property value and investments.

To protect the maintenance of the homes and of home neighborhoods.

To offer a safe district in which industries may be located without problem and with every facility to do business.

It might also have mentioned the attractive grouping of public buildings, the provision of parks of playgrounds adequate to the changing needs of a growing city, and the camping site which has come into current popularity as well as usefulness in connection with automobile touring and renewed hiking activities.

COY CANDIDATES

Democratic presidential nomination possibilities are showing the coyness that is characteristic of aspiring political men in the early party of the quadrennial game. Some of them have not given the matter serious consideration; others deny that they are seeking nomination, but admit that they might accept the nomination if it were tendered them with proper insistence. This coyness is amusing rather than instructive.

Already clubs championing the candidacies of half a dozen "possibilities" have been formed and are steaming ahead. While those in whose name such organizations are working may be unwilling to stand forth as aspirants for nomination, it is difficult to believe that the politicians who are so cremously working in their interests have not inside information as to their attitudes and desires. Indications are that practically every front rank democrat is as willing as Barkis
the matter of presidential nomination, and it is warranted assumption that it is the nature of such willingness to be more than passive.

A COMING QUESTION

It becomes increasingly apparent that the question of our foreign relations will figure strongly in the next presidential campaign. Already the warring guns of controversy are being fired. Since this is true, the people themselves study the subject to what they truly believe or do not believe.

The politicians will prefer to do the people's thinking for them, but that no reason why they should be allowed the privilege. There are many lines of information on the European situation and the various reactions in this country. There are many already accessible and there will be more, gathered and vouched for by persons who have no political axes to grind, to show how we are affected by the present situation, and what the probable result upon our domestic enterprises of our entering fully into international connections, expanding half out and half in, or being wholly outside.

There are things which the voters should study individually and in groups, which they should think over by themselves and talk over among themselves. Then they will be in a position to judge between honest argument and mere vote-getting propaganda.

JOCKEYING FOR POSITION

Now is the time when those who know the game they are watching rake with a fine tooth comb the utterance of political leaders on matters of public interest. With a presidential election less than two years off, party strategists and those who are playing for position in the race for nomination and election are already beginning to temper their speech with expediency. From now on, statements, interviews, speeches and letters of political leaders are to be carefully weighed and analyzed by the public, if it would get to the meat of such outgivings.

From the present till the next election, voting America will be beset with woeful. From the four corners of the country they will come. And with such players of the game of po-itics, facts, actual conditions, the real relationship between economic cause and economic effect, will be variously utilized, twisted and distorted, to serve political ends. Democratic politicians can be counted on to charge
the republican party with every ill that has befallen or may befall and to deny it credit for good.

PUBLIC EXTRAVAGANCE

Taxes are always an unpleasant subject, yet they have a horrible fascination, especially in a time like this when taxation seems to be the leading national industry. Here are some figures casually observed in a tax review of one state:

The leading county of the state has had its tax assessments raised 760 per cent since 1900 and 199 per cent since 1915.

If this phenomenon stood alone, it would be remarkable enough. Because such taxation is coming to be the rule rather than the exception, in every part of the country, many citizens take it as a matter of course and dismiss the subject with a shrug of the shoulders. "It's the war" they say.

But it is not altogether, nor primarily, the war. It is an orgy of public expenditure which the war does not justify but only makes more burdensome. Most of the vast sums now collected in the form of taxes are spent for current expenses. And everywhere big and costly improvements are undertaken, with little thought as to how they are to be paid for in the future. The bond issues voted so blithely will make still more taxes.

Sometimes the taxes are raised by higher valuation and sometimes by higher rates. The one sure thing is that they keep on rising. And they will continue doing so until voters realize the public extravagance into which they have been led, and refuse to approve additional bond issues for unnecessary projects or to vote for spendthrift officials.

If you fed the robins and the bluebirds and all the other little songsters
during these days when the ground and all possible food was under a blanket of snow and ice, you were doing a real act of kindness.

The people who think Washington ought to set an example for the rest of the country don't realize what they are wishing on the rest of the country.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

THE AUTO WITH WINGS

Looking up they saw an automobile with wings, roosting in a tree.

When the Twins left the queer mixed-up school, they heard a queer flapping sound overhead.

And looking up they saw an automobile with wings, roosting on a tree.

Of all the queer things they had seen in Mix-Up Land, this was the queerest.

"Want a ride?" offered the automobile obligingly.

"Yes, thank you," answered
Nancy. "If it's quite safe."

The automobile rattled its bolts.
"Well, you asked me, so I was just telling you," it answered. "But I'm not so crazy as I look. Automobiles that fly have some advantages over automobiles that roll on the ground. Do you still wish to get to Jack Straw's house on top of the steeple?"

"Yes, yes, yes!" cried both Twins.

"Yes, yes, yes!" cried both Twins.

Grief of Mothers During War Shown

Springfield, Ill.—(By the Associated Press)—Mute testimony to the burden of grief borne by Illinois mothers during the World War is presented in records of the service recognition board which show that many mothers lost two or more sons.

Under the law the bonus is payable for each son who died. In a number of instances two sons died in the service, which will mean a total payment to the mother of $600. In other cases where more than two sons died in service the total amount payable may reach $1,000.

Cases of this kind are not more numerous than they are due to the fact that in many instances one or all of the sons were married and their wives or children are entitled to the

NEWS FROM DIXON

DADS AND SONS TO BANQUET AT Y APRIL FIFTH

Committee is Making Arrangements for Great Event.

The date for the Father and Son banquet at the Y has been set for Thursday, April 5. The committee in charge is making every effort to make this banquet the biggest of its kind ever held in Dixon. It is the duty of every father to get out once in a while with his son and learn more about him and about what he is doing. In case a father has no son he is privileged for this evening to borrow one, and if he knows of no boy to borrow he can secure one by calling on any one of the committee, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Conrad, Rev. Lair or by calling the Y. It will be a great thing for the man, as well as the boy, to be a Dad for one evening to a boy who has no father or whose father is unable to attend.

The program for this affair is being prepared by A. E. Conrad and will be ready to announce in a few days. Needless to say that it will be of an interesting nature and the boys part will show in a way what they are doing at the Y. The age limit for the boys has been set at 10 years as a minimum and no limit the other way. Reservations can be made at the Y Wednesday evening, April 4 as reservations will close at 10 p. m. on that day.

The E. C. Smith basketball team had a crimp put in their winning streak last evening when the South Central five trimmed them by a score of 34-9. Although the score was low sided the playing was spirited at all times due to the encouragement given the players by the spectators who came to watch the boys play.

South Central—Lair and Miller, forwards; Keller, center; Weinmann, Wolfe, Segner and Wilson, guards.

Rev. Lair to Speak to Klean Kid Klub

The Klean Kid Klub is very fortunate in securing a speaker for their meeting next Sunday, Rev. G. E. Lair, who recently came to Dixon from Cedar Rapids, Ia. Rev. Lair who is an exceptionally good speaker for boys will have for his subject "Putting Out to Sea." No boy should miss this meeting and the attendance should be a record breaker.

Bees Sometimes Lazy Apiculturist States

Washington, D. C.—To speak of honeybees loafing may seem paradoxical, but the alleged industry of honeybees is something of a myth, declares E. F. Phillips, Department of Agriculture apiculturist.

"The average worker bee in the hands of a poor beekeeper makes only a few trips a day for nectar," said Mr. Phillips recently. "When the bees are rearing a brood the beekeeper must manage the hive so finished work is either removed or properly placed. Otherwise loafing will result. Finished work near the brood slows down field work. Proper conditions within the hive causes the bees to make additional trips to the fields, and thus to increase the honey crop."

Upwards of 1,000,000 people in the United States keep bees, it is estimated, and bee colonies number about 8,000,000. In spring these colonies average about 15,000 bees each and after brood-rearing they number 75,000 or more worker bees. Honey production adds about $50,000,000 annually to the wealth of the nation and provides a valuable addition to the diet of the people.

The idea that bees work for nothing and board themselves in quite enormous, according to Mr. Phillips. During the main honey-flow the efficient beekeeper must be on the job daily and hourly, as highly skillful work is required of him. The modern beekeeper finds bees more productive than did his predecessor, yet he earns all he gets, Mr. Phillips believes, and in these days of low honey prices he earns more than he actually receives.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Vendetta begins here, noted criminal, and Sir Norman Gray, once of Scotland Yard, when Savers' beautiful housemaid.

JANET, saved him from Sir Norman by shooting dead an officer sent to arrest him. Janet becomes Savers' wife and accomplice. In the escape, Savers' beautiful housemaid, Janet, escapes capture and is forced to flee the country.

Janet receives a legacy of two hundred and fifty pounds and takes passage to Marseilles. During the journey she makes friends with a man, Popple, who warns her to keep away from a passenger named Louisa Martin. Louisa visits Janet's stateroom and reveals herself as one of Michael's confederates. A witness comes to Louisa in care of Janet.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Janet Is Talking:

"Wait here," she ordered, snatching the message from my hand. There was a heavy swell that night and I was glad to sit down upon my bunk. She returned in a very few moments. Her cheeks were flushed. She handed me back the message. Underneath it she had penciled the interpretation: "Danger! It must be dealt with promptly!"

I looked at it and shook my head. "I suppose I am a fool," I admitted. "But I can't understand a word."

"You are a fool," she agreed. "No wonder Michael never trusted you with a code! It means that some one dangerous must be traveling in Stateroom 37, who must be dealt with promptly by me—Louisa—my name. Do you understand now?"

"But how could Michael know that I was on the steamer, and why should he have sent this message to me instead of to you?" I demanded.

"The chief of police at Marseilles has a copy of every passenger list of steamers leaving London and calling at Marseilles, forwarded overland," she replied. "Michael has a friend in the Bureau. It is possible that I am being watched. He knew quite well that I should find you out, and that I should be of more use than you were likely to be. . . . Now to discover who is traveling in Stateroom 37."

She called to the steward, who was reading outside. He unhooked the door and looked in.

"Steward, can you tell me the name of the gentleman in No. 37?" she inquired.

"Mr. Popple, madam—an American gentleman," he announced.

"What are you going to do?" I asked.

She smiled in a peculiar fashion. "Obey Michael," she answered softly.

The next morning, Mr. Popple came over and talked to me again. He had shown me from the first a considerable amount of attention, but his conversation had always been of the most ordinary kind. This morning, however, in the midst of a discussion on ladies' footwear, he broke off and addressed me in different fashion.

"So you're making friends with the woman who looked as though she wanted to bite your head off at Gibraltar?" he remarked.

"I shouldn't have said so," I replied cautiously.

"She was in your stateroom last night, wasn't she?" he queried.

"For a moment or two," I admitted. "Why not?"

He watched the smoke from his cigar thoughtfully.

"I guess you've got common-sense enough to take a word of advice," he said. "Here it is. Keep out of it."

"Keep out of what?" I demanded.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"That's a fine show of porpoises," he observed, looking over the side of the ship. "I don't know as I've ever seen a finer in these waters."

"In other words—" I ventured.

"GUESS I AM SICK, DOC. JUST STOP AROUND TO MY STATEROOM WITH ME FOR A MOMENT."

was in progress. I was surprised, therefore, to hear Mr. Popple suddenly addressed the doctor, who had joined me again for a few minutes.

"Just a moment, Doc," he said.

We stopped at once. Mr. Popple seemed to rise with difficulty to his feet.

"Guess I am sick, Doc. Just stop around to my stateroom with me for a moment."

Mr. Popple, suddenly very pale, moved on his feet and clutched at the doctor's arm. I expected every moment to see him collapse. We all turned to Louisa. She shook her head, apparently as bewildered as the rest of us.

"We had just finished our coffee," she explained. "When Mr. Popple, who had been talking a great deal, became silent. He spoke of a pain in his head and I thought he seemed queer. Then he called out to the doctor. That is all I know about it."

By degrees the others melted away. I sank into Mr. Popple's vacant chair. As soon as we were alone, Mrs. Louisa Martin looked at me covertly. There was a flash of triumph in her half-closed eyes.

"So?" she murmured. "I do not think that Mr. Popple will follow me about Marseilles."

"Do you mean that you have poisoned him?" I gasped.

She looked at me with a queer little smile.

"Some," she said. "prefer to shoot. I choose the way of safety."

Then I knew that Michael had told her everything. In that moment, all that I had ever felt of love for him turned to hate.

We entered the harbor at Marseilles late on the following morning, and drifted down on our way to the dock. We stood leaning over the side, waiting, prepared to land, but waiting for the gendarmes at the farther end of the gangway to give the word. Suddenly I felt a thrill pass through my whole body. Leaning with his back to one of the wooden pillars was a man with tanned, almost swarthy skin, lean-faced, with a hungry, wolflike droop of his thin lips. He was shabbily dressed even for a laborer. Yet I knew Michael, even although he never glanced again in my direction. I knew that he had recognized me. I made my way to where Louisa was standing, and I touched her on the arm.

"Look there," I said, directing her attention cautiously toward the lounging figure.

She looked at him for a moment without interest. Then suddenly the change came into her face. She clutched at my arm.

"There is danger," she muttered. "He has been obliged to flee. Alas, our week at the Villa exists no longer!"

A moment afterward, there was a movement toward the gangway. I followed the others off the ship, and waited until a magnificent-looking functionary, smelling of garlic, had made my way to a piece of the porter shouldered it and turned to me for instructions.

"A carriage to the Hotel Splendide," I directed.

I was on the point of entering it when I felt a touch upon my arm. "He insists upon seeing you," she whispered in a low tone. "Where are you going?"

"To the Hotel Splendide," I told her with a sinking heart.

"I shall fetch you tonight at six o'clock."

"Why does Michael want to see me?" I asked reluctantly.

"One does not ask Michael questions," she answered with a sneer. "You should have found that out by this time."

I felt as though an ugly cloud were looming over this wonderful holiday of mine, and I spent a restless and unsatisfactory afternoon. At six o'clock Louisa came for me in a small fiacre, and we drove slowly and with horrible jolts into one of the foulest seacoast slums one could imagine. I began to feel fear.

"Where are we going?" I demanded.

"To the only place where Michael can hide in safety," Louisa replied.

"Even the police of Marseilles would scarcely dare to seek him here," she said.

We stopped at last at the end of a dark and narrow street, a place so squalid and unseemly that I hesitated to leave the vehicle. Louisa, however, elbowed me out and half-pushed, half-conducted me along an entry, with a high wall on either side, a stony place with the swish of waves distinctly audible. At the extreme end she pushed open a door on the left-hand side. We found ourselves in a cafe of the poorest class, with sanded floors and iron table. A woman, fat and with a hideous face, stood behind the bar.

Louisa went straight to the woman and whispered in her ear. The woman, who had at least three or four children, nodded ponderously and smiled, showing a row of yellow, discolored teeth. She glanced cautiously around the place, as though to make sure that no stranger was amongst her clientele. Then, with a bent, beringed finger, she beckoned us behind the counter and led us down some steps, along a passage, into a smother and fearsome-looking apartment tawdriy furnished, with a cracked gilt mirror upon the mantel, place, walls reeking with damp, and some violet plush chairs of incredible shabbiness. In the corner was a bed, and upon it Michael was seated, still in his disguise of a French ouvrier, but with a new look upon his face—the hunted, desperate look of a man at bay.

"You devil!" he said to me slowly and menacingly. "It is you who have brought your damned lover-policeman here!"

"It is false," I replied. "I came to Marseilles for a holiday only."

"A holiday!" Michael repeated bitterly.

"My Adventures In Hollywood"

A "FATE," WHO UNWINDS THE FORTUNES OF MOVIEDOM, GIVES THE BEGINNER SOME TIPS

BY VIRGINIA BRADFORD.

Hollywood, March 27.—Casting directors are the "fates" who unwind the fortunes of moviedom, as every girl coming to Hollywood ought to know at the outset.

It had taken me weeks of floundering to realize my importance.

Then came an illuminating talk with L. M. Goodstadt of the Lasky company, dean of Hollywood's casting directors, with whom I gained in interview by sending in a note from the gate.

A cheerful, unfluffed and stage-trained man, Goodstadt, who goes into the market for his human-picture material very much like any other business man for supplies. He took half an hour to tell me about his job, the material he looks for, what the novice must expect—a kindly service to a stranger which I am sharing with every movie-struck girl who reads this.

"I try to see everyone once," he said. "I look for photographic quality, a thing peculiar to pictures; for intelligence and charming personality; above all, for intelligence, for that suggests the capacity of growth and staying power."

"Expert people are just as carefully selected as are the principals."

A heart-breaking struggle. The ebullient must be capable of great patience, for this is one of the slowest and most heart-breaking struggles I know of.

"The wise director judges an applicant not alone for what he or she seems capable of today, but a year or two hence. Nothing is farther from the truth than the impression that any good-looking girl will be grabbed by the movies and made a star in a few weeks. It couldn't be done even if we wanted to."

"Motion picture production isn't a game, it's a business."

"Perhaps you've never thought how costly it is to cast untalented people for prominent parts. The daily average production on this lot is from $6000 to $8000 a day. One misfit may slow or stop the whole works."

"There is no way for the beginner, even after breaking in, to know whether there'll be one day's work per week or month. Unless the novice shows something strikingly exceptional, she may consider herself extremely lucky to work more than four or five days."

month at $3 to $10 a day.

"Any youngster who makes good in the movies has that compelling something which would win success in almost any other field.

"What gets my goat is the insatiable ferable egoism of so many applicants. Of course, it's essential to think well of yourself, but don't take up a director's time telling him how good you are and what a knockout you'd be if you only had a chance.

"Better be frank, and say you want to learn, than trump up fake experiences which may lead to a disastrous first mistake."

How much of this was meant for me personally I could only guess. Just what had I to offer in the picture market to justify that "slow heart-breaking struggle" this courteous adviser had sought to impress upon me.

I registered and went home to a solemn and sleepless night.

Would Mr. Goodstadt call me for the next picture?

TOMORROW: Virginia Bradford, with tragicomic ambitions, tells how she starts in comedy.

Aliens Become U. S. Citizens with Aid of Labor Bureaus

Washington.—More than 1,500,000 aliens eligible for American naturalization already have been directed to citizenship training classes established by local authorities throughout the United States in co-operation with the Bureau of Naturalization of the Department of Labor. The classes are conducted at night, and enable the aliens not only to obtain free the educational training necessary for approval of their citizenship petitions, but also to get information that will lead them to better jobs, higher pay and improved living conditions.

The Bureau has established a service through which candidates for citizenship are invited to attend the classes provided by local authorities for their instruction, and their names and addresses also are forwarded to the public school officials. The number of foreign residents thus reached, it is said, is necessarily limited to those who have declared their intention to become citizens.

since the Labor Department lacks the names and addresses of those who have not filed petitions. It is believed, nevertheless, that free instruction facilities have been made available to many others through measures taken by local Americanization organizations, Boy Scouts, Young Men's Christian Associations, chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and other patriotic and civic societies.

Cards giving the records of the aliens attending the classes, bureau officials declare, add to the value of the work from a public view-point in that they give a basis for complete community surveys to determine needs in Americanization work.

The Bureau receives almost daily letters from candidates for citizenship and Americanization workers praising the service, and also gets a number of reports on the work of aliens taking advantage of the courses. Some of these reports, it is said, show the progress made by candidates over 60 years of age who had resided in this country many years without taking steps to become citizens.

AN INTIMATE STUDY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS

Copyright, 1923, N.E.A. Service, Inc.

LETTER FROM ALICE HAMILTON TO BETTY STOKLEY.

You can imagine, dear Betty, how thrilled I was to get a cablegram. I had never even seen a real cablegram before, let alone receiving one, and just think, dear, it was relayed to me from New York by wireless. It was a good thing that I happened to be alone at the house when it came, as mother would certainly have made me confess all.

Your idea is splendid. The moment I received the cablegram I made arrangements to meet Karl Whitney at the Country Club. His voice was full of repressed excitement when I told him I thought I had hit upon the plan.

When I first told it to him he seemed a little dubious.

"Someone," he said, "who is a connoisseur of pearls will surely see them, and the conspiracy will be all off."

But I finally talked him over and he agreed to it. I really think secretly he wanted Leslie to know and just keep it to herself, but I know my own sex well enough to know that a loving young bride tell her husband everything and a sensible old wife tell him nothing.

Karl had the pearls in a case in his pocket, Betty, and you never saw such gorgeous things in your life. Think of it! Sixty lustrous, luxurious, evenly pearls, and not one of them cost less than two thousand dollars!

Don't you wish you had someone who loved you well enough and was rich enough to make you a present like that?

If I had, been Les I don't think I ever could have resisted Karl. Personally, I think him much nicer than the man she is going to marry.

But as we have said to each other often times, one never can tell just why or when or with whom one will fall in love. The only thing one will know about it is that one is in love.

It seems strange, Betty, to be treated as a grown-up young woman by one of Les' admirers, but, of course, now that my older sister is to be married, and I am seventeen years old, it is right that I should take my place in society.

I'll tell you honestly, however, that I'll never have a grand wedding; I think they are all foolishness.

It really seems to me like making an awful bluff, when you do not yet know the value of your hand. Think how you feel if after a year or two you would want to get a divorce and the papers would all refer back to your wonderful wedding.

No, I'm determined that I shall elope when I marry. But I haven't seen anyone yet that I am in love with—at least I do not get hot and cold when some good-looking chap comes into the room. I've tried to be thrilled with a lot of chaps, but it would not work. Guess I'm too practical to fall in love. Even when Karl Whitney took both my hands in his and, looking down into my eyes, said in the most impressive manner—"dear little Alice, I didn't think it were possible that any girl of your age could be so sympathetic and understanding"—my heart didn't miss a beat.

Won't it be glorious while Les is being married for me, at the very end of

HOTBEDS AND COLDFRAMES AS BACKYARD FOOD FACTORIES

BY WILLIAM R. BEATTIE
Extension Horticulturist, United States Department of Agriculture

"Fresh vegetables from the garden every day in the year" is the slogan of garden enthusiasts the country over.

At first thought this would seem impossible, but by careful planning, planning and cultivating aided by the use of a small hotbed and a coldframe the seemingly impossible can be accomplished throughout that portion of the country where the winter climate is not too severe.

A small hotbed, consisting of concrete or brick walls covered by about four or five standard 3x6-foot heated sash can be built on the south side of the garage or attached directly to the side of the dwelling.

Heat for warming the bed can be supplied by a coil of pipe or radiator connected to the house or garage heating system.

With the development of improved hot water heaters, burning oil or hard coal, such as are used for heating poultry brooder houses, there is splendid opportunity for the development of beds.

The heater should in all cases be placed in a separate compartment or pit at the end of the hotbed on account of the danger of gases being given off which would injure the plants.

One of the best arrangements of the heating pipes is to have them on the walls of the bed just a little below the sash. In some cases the pit is made four to six feet in depth and the heater pipes run underneath a floor which is supported upon a ledge built in the walls about 18 inches below the glass.

Fire heated beds may be used throughout the winter in mild climates for growing lettuce, parsley, cress, dandelion and a few others of the more hardy salad crops.

Toward spring, radishes, small tender beets and baby carrots, also what are known as "peeler" onions may be added to the list.

In addition to these crops grown for immediate use, early plants such as tomatoes, peppers, cabbage and cauliflower may be started in boxes and gotten ready for transplanting to the garden.

One of the important points in the management of a hotbed is to see that the temperature does not run too high.

Coldframes are nothing more than a hotbed without heat, that is, the frame and construction is practically the same and the bed is covered with sash the same as a hotbed.

The use of the coldframe, however, is just a little different from that of the hotbed.

Late in the winter when the sun is getting nearer and a greater degree of natural heat can be depended upon such crops as lettuce, radishes, beets and "peeler" onions can be grown in a coldframe, especially if mats, straw, or some other covering is kept handy for throwing over the beds cold nights.

The coldframe is also especially useful for transplanting the early tomato and other plants started in the hotbed and for hardening these plants to outdoor conditions.

The hotbed and coldframe are important adjuncts to the home garden from the standpoint of starting early plants, but the gardener who has the time to devote to the care of a hotbed during the winter can have a lot of fun out of it and at the same time greatly extend the period for fresh vegetables on his table.

Launching of a ship is surrounded by sailors with many superstitions. If the launching is a success, the ship goes to sea with a crew free of misgivings. A girl launches her social ship when she makes her debut. If it be successful, her social career has received a most desirable impulse. Whether it's a complete success or a partial failure, depends more on her personal conduct than any other feature.

The Debutante

1: A debut may be made at a ball, afternoon tea with dancing, small dance, small tea without music or simply by issuance of her mother's visiting card with the daughter's engraved below her own.

2: At a ball each guest shakes hands with the debutante and she should receive as long as they continue to arrive.

3: The debutante's supper partner is one who has spoken for the privilege weeks or months in advance of the event.

4: The debutante must dance well or she had better stay away from balls or dances, and exploit her other abilities, such as being able to play a good hand at bridge or a good game of golf.

5: The debutante should remember that it's folly to try to do anything socially unless one can do it well.

Ask Monuments Be Given Attention

Rockford, Ill., March 26.— Beautification of soldiers' and sailors' monuments during national garden week, April 22 to 28, is urged by the American Legion Auxiliary of Illinois. The auxiliary suggests planting gardens at soldiers' hospitals and homes to give the hands of the disabled service men something to do. The planting of memorial trees also is planned by the auxiliary.

WITNESS SAYS COMMUNISM IS NOT ANARCHISM

Denies Party is Seeking Overthrow of Government.

St. Joseph, Mich., March 27.—(By the Associated Press)—Charles E. Ruthenberg of Cleveland, testifying in defense of William Z. Foster of Chicago, charged with violation of the Michigan syndicalism law, today awaited resumption of cross examination by attorneys for the state. Ruthenberg, who qualified as an expert witness on communism, was arrested at the Communist convention held near here last August and held for trial on the same charge as that against Foster.

The state yesterday, on cross examination, tried to get an admission from Ruthenberg that the communist party of America is dedicated to violent overthrow of the government. Two and one-half hours of questioning only elicited testimony that the witness did not know that the communist program offered in evidence really was a party program, and that it was the statement of violent aims set forth in it were "an overt statement" of communist philosophy. Ruthenberg admitted that the communist organization was functioning as late as a week ago Sunday, when he attended a meeting of more than 400 delegates in New York. Charles Gore, prosecuting attorney, read alleged details of the meeting from the report of a government agent who attended it and the witness admitted that, in the main, they were correct. He denied, however, that illegal action was discussed there.

Illinois Bakers to Meet in Peoria Soon

Peoria, Ill., March 26.—Five hundred bakers from all parts of Illinois are expected here April 24-26 for the annual convention of the Illinois Association of Bakers, according to the announcement here of Secretary Adolph Bunz, of this city.

A meeting of the executive board of the association, has been called for March 28, at which time details of the program will be determined. The board includes President Walter Spitz, Danville; Vice President, Marshall O. Densby, Chicago; Treasurer, George Geisler, of Joliet; Secretary, Adolph Benz, Peoria. Executive Board Members: Oscar Strand, Monmouth; Winner C. Brown, Galesburg; Fred Messmer, Mattoon; J. E. Stagger, Cairo and Eugene Lipp, Chicago.
